Fields of research:

At EFEM architect office, where BM was one of the partners since the foundation, the work was mainly directed at comprehensive and detailed physical planning practice and related research and development work mainly for the Swedish Council for Building Research. At Chalmers Architecture the research is directed at planning theory and methodology within the theme "Sustainable Urban Development" supported by knowledge development in close co-operation between research and practice. The current focus is on urban structures and questions related to everyday life in a sociotechnical perspective and following a systems analytic approach. Studies concern cities in industrialised as well as developing countries. A personal interest is directed at the roles and tools of professionals in participative planning processes for communication, mutual learning and decision support.
